

Keynote 3 Kelley Haynes-Mendez

Pursuing Equity and Justice for Psychology Students in Higher Education

Abstract

Institutions of higher education are often microcosms of inequalities that exist in larger society. Psychology faculty members should consider which inequities exist in their institutions and their role in creating change. This talk will address the importance of faculty participation and commitment to structural change at higher education institutions in order to promote equity and justice for students.